Foreword

This sixty-fourth volume of Mennonite Yearbook and Directory continues the process begun in the sixty-third, that of making visible the reality of the new church structure of the Mennonite Church.

Church structure whether new or old is, basically, a thought-through way people relate to one another to get the work of the church done. People, not organizational charts, are the reality. One purpose of a yearbook is to help all brothers and sisters know who some of these persons are who have been given special responsibilities in the work of the church. Another purpose is to help us perceive more clearly how persons with these responsibilities relate to each other to accomplish the work of the church under the direction of the Lord of the church.

In the 1973 Yearbook several significant changes have been made. Last year major changes were made hurriedly — there was only a short time between the action in Kitchener, August 1971, and the time copy was due to the printer. Since the 1972 Yearbook was published, we have tried to hear the suggestions that have come to us to make the Yearbook more useful. One significant change is the listing of all district and conference committees and organizations with each conference. Because of the wide diversity in conference structure, it is no longer possible to group conference Christian education committees (boards, cabinets) or social concern organizations into churchwide listings.

The Yearbook is a place to find names, addresses, numbers. But more it is an educational tool — to help each member sense where the church is now, to realize how broad the work of the church really is, and to know who the persons are that carry special responsibilities. Informed church members are aware not only of the historical meaning of the existence of the church, but also of the historical moment in which they are now living. The Yearbook contributes to an understanding of the present moment — thus the 1973 Yearbook is valuable in each home, in each pastor's study, in each church library, and on the desk of each person serving under a church board or agency.

Levi Miller, editor, Marian Shenk, and Penny Frey have worked hard to prepare the 1973 Yearbook manuscript. Paul Kraybill, General Secretary, and Ivan Kauffmann, Associate General Secretary of the Mennonite General Board, have contributed much counsel. Thanks, too, are due to district and conference secretaries and the many others who gather and make available the data found herein. And a special word of appreciation goes to the Manufacturing Division of the Mennonite Publishing House for their patience and care, going beyond what is required, to provide as accurate and up-to-date a publication as possible.

Congregational Literature Division

The Mennonite Church 1973

A. DON AUGSBURGER

Moderator of the Mennonite General Assembly

The Mennonite Church is currently alive and well. It has come through the trauma of reorganization successfully. It has adjusted its course and is looking to the future.

The reevaluation began with the Study Commission on Church Organization evaluating the structure of the Mennonite Church. Yellow Creek, 1970, was an historic occasion when brethren came together to hear reports and evaluate proposals. The Spirit of God was moving among His people. His presence was felt in a unique way.

Kitchener, 1971, was not an anticlimax but a capsheaf to the total evaluation and reorganization process. The Spirit was present in word and in power. This was evident as new direction was sought and found. The closing of the old organization and the opening of the new was historic occasion for the Mennonite Church of North America.

We are well aware, however, that restructurization does not have all the answers for the church in a hurting world. If the church is to become truly the people of God, times of reassessment and evaluation can be very significant. A consolidation of efforts and an appraisal of direction help the church become much more effective in its ministry.

The Mennonite Church is now operating in the midst of its first biennium since reorganization. It is indeed gratifying to observe the way in which the various program boards, committees, and officers have cooperated under the Spirit in a successful unification of the ministry of the Mennonite Church. A number of factors have become very evident:

1. A Breath from the Spirit

Many persons both on an organizational level and a personal level are finding fellowship with each other. The regions are being formed which is bringing cross-conference participation in a way that has not happened before. Finding each other will help the church to become more effective in finding others for Jesus Christ. In the midst of all of this, there is a breath of the Spirit that is moving throughout the Mennonite Church revitalizing our structure for efficiency and effectiveness. The mission boards, relief agencies, Mennonite disaster services, congregational ministries, educational institutions, publishing efforts and our forms of Mennonite mutual aid are all subject to the scrutiny of the Spirit of Jesus Christ. Always we must be open to His blowings and respond as He would have us to respond in the midst of a hurting world. Our efforts must not be counter to His. The Spirit of God must blow in and through the Mennonite Church in the coming years if it is to be an effective witness in a dark world.

2. A Grasp of Responsibility

The theme for Assembly '73 is, "God's People in Mission." While we are only a small segment of the people of God we need to become more fully aware of the value of unity in the Spirit and of a oneness of mission and purpose. The Scripture carefully tells us that "Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it." The church must be aggressive and respond to new opportunities. We need also to sense, however, as a people of God that we are simply His children functioning under His divine grace and lordship. We must become more completely informed about the hurting ills of society and function as the people of God in our given communities.

The Mennonite Church has come from a rich heritage. Our Anabaptist roots have assisted in giving us a kind of solidarity. We must be fully aware of the fact, however, that no human spiritual ancestry is to be worshiped. Anabaptism is simply an illustration of the way in which God worked with a people at a given time in history. We cannot ride on their successes nor should we stumble over their failures. The way the Spirit related to them can be a challenge to us in fulfilling His purposes for our time.

3. A Coordination of Efforts

During this past biennium the cooperation between the program boards and the various committees of the Mennonite Church and the General Board has been gratifying. There is a new awareness of corporate concern. There is a new understanding of the fact that all efforts lead toward the spiritual welfare of all mankind. The whole person is significant. While one agency may not be able to minister to every need, the cooperation of various boards and programs can bring a complete ministry to suffering humanity within our world. A unified approach, not born of competition, ministering to all basic needs is the challenge of our time.

4. A Reassessment of Potential

The Mennonite Church of North America has approximately 100,000 members. There are, in round numbers, 1,000 congregations. Nearly 75 percent of these congregations have less than 100 members. This is not a liability but an asset. A greater sense of family spirit, an ease of communication and a new awareness of one another can more readily develop. A basic concern of the Study Commission on Church Organization dealt with the importance of the local congregation. Each congregation of the Mennonite Church should reassess its potential during 1973. A careful look at financial ability, a discernment of gifts, and a new look at the challenges that surround each local congregation should all be concerns of top priority.

To function faithfully as God's stewards, there must be a new awareness of the fact that our resources are His. The church must function effectively in their assessment and appropriation.

The youth of the Mennonite Church are undergoing a transformation of values. This transformation is at times a threat to the preceding generation. Youth and adults need each other desperately. Let us, therefore, keep channels of communication open and learn from each other in this time of change.

5. An Awareness of Divine Presence

The Mennonite Church is becoming more fully aware of the implications of many of the current movements that are running counter to the Word and will of God. The materialistic spirit, the nationalistic consciousness, the new morality, the cheap gospel, and a humanistic endeavor to minister to mankind are issues that continue to confront and challenge the Mennonite Church in the decade of the 70s.

It is my prayer and concern that the divine presence of Jesus Christ will be so sensed among us that we might understand His will more completely, feel His presence more closely, and do His will less hesitatingly in the years ahead.

The church of Jesus Christ is alive and well. To be part of a church with such a rich heritage gives one poise in the midst of a dark and dying world. Let us rejoice as heirs to a bright future.

Mennonite Church Giving 1973

BY IVAN KAUFFMANN

Associate General Secretary, General Board

The Mennonite Church in Canada and United States is a group of more than 1,000 congregations of God's people involved in a mission. The nature and extent of that mission is described in the words of Jesus: "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you; and you will bear witness for me in Jerusalem, and all over Judaea and Samaria, and away to the ends of the earth" (Acts 1:8, NEB).

Each congregation is urged to respond to the words of Jesus by participating in the mission of the church in the three areas of involvement:

The Mission in the Home Community

The home community is a front line of action for each congregation. This is where its mission is to begin. Through prayer, study, and consultation the congregation should seek the Holy Spirit's guidance in setting goals, planning its program, and investing resources each year.

The Mission in Surrounding Areas

Each congregation becomes a part of the mission to surrounding areas through the cluster, district, conference, or region to which it belongs for fellowship, outreach, and extension. Congregations join their efforts and resources to operate camping programs, schools, retreats, youth conventions, establish new congregations, welfare institutions, and service programs. Each district or conference will supply the congregation with the necessary information describing its program and financial needs.

The Mission That Is Worldwide

Each congregation becomes a part of the mission that is worldwide through participating in the work of the churchwide agencies of the Mennonite Church. The work of these agencies is the product of the prayer support, the personnel resources, and the financial contribution of the total brotherhood.

The mission that is worldwide involves the lives of thousands of dedicated Christians and represents an investment of 3 1/3 million dollars of contributed funds. Each dollar contributed to the churchwide agencies is used as in the illustration on page 8.

Each of the churchwide agencies supplies conferences and congregations with the necessary information describing its program and financial needs. Each conference or district is responsible to work out guidelines and goals to assist congregations in planning their giving for churchwide causes. Questions regarding Mennonite Church giving can be directed to Mennonite Church General Board, Room 104, 10600 West Higgins Road, Rosemont, Illinois 60018.

Conference and District Directory of Congregations

This directory lists congregations alphabetically by conference, church, or district and by name of congregation. Congregations in Lancaster Conference, Virginia Conference, and Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church are listed by bishop districts. Some of these conferences and districts do not affiliate with regional planning groups nor do they send delegates to General Assembly. Conservative Conference congregations are listed alphabetically by states. Ministers and other ordained personnel are listed in the Regional Directory of Congregations, page 10. Roman numerals following the congregations indicate the region in which it can be found.

For the 10-to-14-Year-Olds In Your Church

Would you like to give your juniors and intermediates help to understand the message of the Bible? To handle their problems? To feel themselves persons of worth? To make a personal commitment to Christ? To see the wonders of the world? To appreciate their Christian and Mennonite heritage?

On the Line tries to give this help. But you will need to see that your children get a subscription. The paper also has place for letters from the readers, giving them a chance to find twins and pen pals.

In addition there are parents who report that their children grab it up and read it because they find it just plain interesting.

You can have On the Line come to your 9-to-14-year-olds on the Sunday school order blank. Or they could get it individually at their home addresses.

See that your Sunday school children get On the Line. If they are not receiving, return the coupon below for enough copies to give one to each child.

To be cared for feels good

To be a caring person gives personal fulfillment

Care One For Another looks at:

- What the Bible teaches about care or mutual aid (this includes a look at attitudes about wealth and counseling about financial matters).
- The difference between mutual aid and welfare or insurance.
- The ways care or mutual aid is practiced spontaneously in congregations or more formally through various organizations.
- The witness value of caring through organizations such as TAP, MEDA, MCC, and MDS.
- The need to find new ways to express care or mutual aid in urbanized society.

Both the pupil book and leader's guide are organized into six clearly outlined chapters. Although the leader's guide does not contain the pupil book materials, it follows the outline and contributes additional resources such as supplemental Bible study, anecdotes, a role play, a simulation game, and teaching suggestions.

An audiovisual — two filmstrips and a record — is an integral part of the study. Filmstrip No. 1 defines mutual aid; filmstrip No. 2 shows four types of situations where mutual aid was experienced.

These materials are recommended as a special congregational study with a minimum of six sessions or as a Sunday school elective for youth/adults.

The Mennonite Encyclopedia

A Modern Reference Work on Anabaptist and Mennonite History

This encyclopedia covers the 435-year history of the faith, life, and culture of the Anabaptists in Europe and the Mennonites throughout the world. Presented are men, movements, and places in their relation to the Mennonites. A few of the many articles covered are Argentina, Arminianism, Baptism, Baptist, Brazil, Calvin, Church, Communion, Congo, Deaconess, Education, Farming, Furniture, Grebel, Hubmaier, Hymnology, Industry, Literature, Marriage, Publishers, Reedley, Ukraine, and Zurich.

The Mennonite Encyclopedia has been jointly edited by historians and scholars of the Mennonite Church, the General Conference of Mennonites, and the Mennonite Brethren Church. More than 2,700 writers have contributed articles to this reference work.

Using the 1973 Yearbook

Several changes have been made in the 1973 MENNONITE YEARBOOK which should make it more usable.

— An Index has been added in the back of the YEARBOOK. Any church, organization, subject, or grouping should be more easily found with this additional guide.

— Congregations from conferences, districts, and unaffiliated Mennonites are listed in the geographical listing — the Regional Directory. This inclusion makes the Regional Directory a complete listing of Mennonite congregations.

— In the Conference and District Directory a roman numeral after the state or province of a congregation indicates the region in which it is located.

— All conference and district committee chairpersons and officers are listed with each conference. There are no separate listings of conference committees and/or coordinating groups.

— The Ministerial Directory includes ordained persons from all conferences, districts, and unaffiliated groups.

— Several Statistical Tables are divided into two parts: one for North America and the other for overseas groupings. This will permit comparisons between churches overseas and those in North America in areas such as membership growth.
